PARTNERSHIP

October 12th 2020

Dear Pastor Nolan and the missions committee of Toronto Chinese Baptist Church,

It was a real joy recently to introduce to you Pavani Paul, who is the beneficiary of the Wycliffe College Scholars matching grant program. Pavani's story will also be featured in our fall 2020 newsletter.

Because Pavani secured extra financial help during this year, she did not need to draw on all the funds available through the matching grant for the 2020/21 year, and we have about $8,000 over and above what we had budgeted for the first year outlay. At the same time, we have received a request from Langham Hong Kong to assist in the support of Wei-Neng Hung, also studying at Wycliffe College. Given the extraordinary pressures on our Hong Kong partner due to their challenging political and financial situation, Langham Canada wants to do what we can to help. Wei-Neng is a Taiwan national, who has until now been entirely supported by Langham Hong Kong. He is nearing completion of his studies in a PhD program in Old Testament studies, after which he will return to Taiwan. Wei-Neng is in Canada with his wife Lily and their two sons, Alan (aged 15) and Andy (13).

Langham Canada has therefore approved a contribution of $8,000 towards Wei-Neng's Wycliffe College fees for the 2020/21 year from the Wycliffe College Scholars Fund. We are privileged in this way to be investing in the theological leadership of the fast-growing Chinese-speaking church throughout the Asia-Pacific, including not just Taiwan, but large Christian communities in Indonesia, Malaysia and other countries in the region. Langham Literature is regularly adding more volumes to its Asia Bible Commentary series, and in 2019 published Asian Christian Theology: Evangelical Perspectives, which is already becoming a standard text for pastors and theological students throughout Asia.

Thank you again for your support of Pavani Paul, helping to prepare the next generation of leaders in theological education and pastoral formation. Thank you too for making it possible for Langham Canada to share with Langham Hong Kong in supporting Wei-Neng at Wycliffe College.
